23 Love Lane: The Garden Room, Anglo-Indian Bungalow

In this already charming and quaint hotel, The Garden Room in the Anglo-Indian Bungalow, so named for its décor style, is the loveliest of all and offers the most privacy as it is the only room that can be accessed by a foliage-lined private pathway, so you may come and go as you please, unseen by other guests of the hotel. This brick-laid pathway also serves as a garden of sorts – drag out some chairs when the sun is up and take in the soft ambiance and enjoy the relative silence of this quiet area of George Town. The Garden Room also boasts a tub within a small, sun-lit annexe off the spacious en-suite bathroom.

Insider's tip:

Also located on Love Lane are two examples of the oh-so Instagrammable street art that George Town is famous for – Budget Hotel by Reggie Lee and Cheating Husband by Mun Kian.
